This is the time chosen for us to commemorate the spiritual heritage left us bythe body of Christian believers who were led to organize a Presbyterian church here for worship and for furthering the spiritual lives of their children and the neighbors around them. One hundred years is a long time to us and yet in the span of eternity it is but a moment. Many of us recall some of the persons who were charter members here and their children after them with fond memories. Most of us have heard of them if we didn't know them. Today, in this building they built and nurtured, we gather to pay tribute to these persons-inadequate but nevertheless our best effort. It is a tribute to those who have nurtured, for a great many of us, the beginnings of our Christian growth. It is a time to praise the Lord and thank Him for touching our lives through them here at Hebron Presbyterian Church.

What was in this area of Albertson township then that isn't here now? One hundred years ago, at the same time Sears and Coca Cola were having their beginnings in other places, Duplin County was settled and peaceful. Its population was made up mainly of self-sufficient farmers whose greatest source of income was making naval stores--tar, pitch, rosin, and turpentine from the pine woods that still covered the area. It was work they could do in winter or when the soil was too wet for farming. Actually the making of tar was also a means of clearing more land for cultivation. In 1896, Eastern North Carolina produced one-third of the entire product of these commodities in the world. Older persons interviewed can remember Bryant Smith having a turpentine still on the Northeast Cape Fear River near Kornegay. Another told of rafting down the river with his father to carry a load of pitch-all stored in barrels made from pine woods- to Wilmington.

Presbyterianism was not new to North Carolina nor even to Duplin County. One hundred years ago there were about thirty-five churches in Wilmington Presbytery. The leaders of Wilmington Presbytery had been led to recognize the need for evangelization to areas destitute of Presbyterianism. Presbytery evangelists were assigned preaching points "in the back parts." A presbytery evangelist was a "presbyter commissioned to preach the gospel without pastoral charge, wherever in the judgment of the Presbytery his services may be needed for the conversion of sinners, and entrusted by the presbytery with just so much of the joint labor as in each case may be lawful and expedient."

At least two of these presbytery evangelists worked with the preaching point that later became Hebron Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Colin Shaw, an 1838 graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill who had continued his studies at Union Theological Seminary in Virginia and Columbia Theological Seminary was one of these. He had been ordained at historic Black River Chapel in Sampson County and served as pastor in that area for about twenty years. During the Civil War, he was a chaplain and near the end of the war became a southern hero leading a band of neighbors to defend their home communities. After the war, Reverend Shaw traveled great distances as a presbytery evangelist to conduct protracted meetings at various preaching points, such as the one at Hebron.

The Rev. John D. Stanford, after 20 years as a lawyer in Kenansville and representing Duplin County in the North Carolina Legislature, was ordained an evangelist in 1886. He loved to mingle with people and preach the gospel. By 1891 he was preaching at five churches and five preaching points. When he died in 1901, he had served fifteen years as an evangelist. Reverend Stanford preached the first ever sermon by a Presbyterian minister in Albertson Township in March 1886. There being no church building in the immediate neighborhood, services were conducted in Sutton Branch School near Sherwood Grady's. In September 1886 Reverend Stanford commenced a protracted meeting at the school. But on Wednesday night of the meeting he held service at Piney Grove Baptist Church, about three miles away. There Miss Percy Ann Barfield joined or expressed a determination to become a member of the Presbyterian Church, making her the first to connect with the church at these services. Continuing services for the remainder of the week at Sutton Branch School, Sherwood Grady and wife, Harriet, were the next to connect with the church there.

In Reverend John Dail's History of Wilmington Presbytery, it is reported that September 16, 1886, Reverend Stanford reported plans for organization of a church at Sutton Branch School. A committee was appointed to organize one "if the way be clear."

On the 16th of December 1886, the commission appointed by the Wilmington Presbytery convened to organize Sutton Branch Church. This commission consisted of Rev. George McMillan, Ruling Elder G. S. Carr, David Williams, and W. S. Miller. Since Rev. Colin Shaw, Rev. Stanford and Elder I. B. Carr were present they, too, were invited to sit with the commission. Rev. George McMillan was made chairman and the persons we now call charter members presented themselves to be organized into a church. Many of the charter members were not new to Presbyterianism. Some had gone to Old Grove Academy and some belonged to Grove Church in Kenansville. The church was duly organized by the election and installation of John G. Smith and Jones R. Smith as elders and Sherwood Grady and Jones Smith as deacons.

The church thus organized continued to use the one-roomed Sutton Branch School for some time. Apparently, though services were held once a month, Sunday School began to be held regularly there. Thirza Shepherd recalls her mother, Agnes Ann Jones, telling how she and her sister and brother, Clarissa and Ashley, used to walk to Sunday School when it was held in the Sutton Branch School, washing their feet and legs in a branch near there and putting on their shoes and socks before they went on to Sunday School.

It could not have been long before Sutton Branch Church's little band of dedicated people knew they should have a building of their own. The committee appointed for that purpose chose a site about two miles away from the school house on the east side of the township on the New Bern or sometimes called the Kinston Road. This main road to New Bern was a horse and buggy dirt road with bridges only over the few wide streams and the river, fording many shallow streams. The deed was properly recorded December 18, 1889--Jones R. and Martha Smith, charter members, and William and Mary S. Stroud donating together 1½ acres to the trustees of the church, John G. Smith, William K. Southerland and William H. Grady.

One can imagine the camaraderie in the "raising" by its members called together for that purpose in 1890 and 1891--the land clearing, the framing, the finishing touches, the food prepared for so many persons. The old Hebron building looked much as it does today--a neat, substantial building naturally lighted by day through its tall eighteen paned windows. A grove immediately to the east was to be used for a cemetery. Soon after they had their own building, Sutton Branch Church by 1891 had changed its name to Hebron.

Through the 1890's Hebron grew. Primarily transportation was a big hindrance. In 1894, presbytery was to meet at Hebron. Records tell us that the meeting had to be detained at Grove Church because Hebron could not be reached on account of high water.

Rev. Stanford continued to be Hebron's missionary speaker and spiritual leader until 1896. Preaching Sundays 1897-1900 were filled by Rev. Richard Veneable Lancaster and some in 1898 by Candidate Robert M. Williams. Rev. Lancaster had been a missionary to Hang Chow, China, 1887-1892. While preaching in the area he also served as president of James Sprunt Institute which then was partially supported by Wilmington Presbytery.

One December 15, 1901, probably in recognition of Hebron's 15th anniversary, a revival commenced at Hebron and continued till the next Sunday. It was conducted by Rev. William Black, synod evangelist. and Rev. L. E. Wells. Much interest was manifested and more new members joined the congregation. The following persons were received into the Church--Trent Gordon Smith, Herbert Maxwell, Sarah Maxwell, S. C. Lawson, Barbara Lawson, W. H. Maxwell, Lucy Ann Maxwell, Albert Maxwell, and Malcolm L. Grady.

Lucien Elonza Wells, a Duplin County native, pastored our flock, 1901-1905. Ill health had prevented his going into foreign mission work, so he gave his life to the home mission work of the Presbyterian Church. While here he also served Chinquapin, Hallsville, Smith's and Beulaville churches. During those years he organized and taught at the Presbyterian High School in Teachey. He returned to pastor Hebron, with Smith's, Seven Springs and Stanford churches 1908-1914. Even when ill health forced him to retire he continued an interest in the churches.

There were no session minutes 1902-1922. During part of that time, Rev. W. M. Shaw, son of Colin Shaw, was our pastor. This was probably at the same time that he served Grove Church where he later returned as President of James Sprunt Institute and Superintendent of Public Instruction for Duplin County. Another person who brought the Word to Hebron's congregation during this time was Rev. J. E. L. Winecoff, a North Carolina home mission worker and author of several books.

About 1910 Walter Jones Smith and Albert Smith decided to build a school adjoining Hebron on the east side. This was a grammar school, probably grades 1-6, lasting 6 months or less each year for the children were needed for work on the farms. Students, children of Walter and Albert (others in the neighborhood had to pay a fee or barter), walked to and from school. These were the days when teachers were employed to teach at a one-room one-teacher school in a community. Teachers were to board one year with Walter's family and the next with Albert's. Susan Southerland, probably its first teacher, boarded at Walter's. Other persons remembered who taught there were Lillian Smith (later Southerland), Kathleen Smith (later Grady) and Libby Cooper. The school was old-fashioned to us but not so primitive as some of the old-time schools we read about. The boys cut wood for the cast-iron stove before they came to school. They had a well and pitcher pump for water and each child brought his own collapsible tin cup. Lunches of biscuits with sausage (sometimes even collards) were brought in a tin pail. The school had a blackboard but the students had their own slates for doing their individual work. Little girls swept leaves into play houses in the wood during recess time. A lot of times they all stayed to play ball after school. This school existed for only about seven years until Pink Hill opened an elementary school.

In the 1910 era, times were such that a quiet Sunday afternoon ride down to the river, with the horse and buggy, was still an enjoyable affair. Communication improved as newspapers began to be published on a daily basis and rural mail delivery began. As industry was diversifying so some farmers were beginning to specialize in poultry and tobacco farming. By 1914 automobiles were beginning to scare the horses on roads not yet ready for auto traffic. The auto's use was limited to the season of the year and the depth of the mud. Newspapers were filled with stories of the Panama Canal and the sinking of the Titanic but these things were in the far outside world. The 1915 report to presbytery by W. H. Grady tells us that during that time, member Albert S. Maxwell became a minister of the gospel, and that in 1913, Malcolm Grady, another member, had been received under care as a ministerial student at Westminster School near Rutherfordton, N. C. Reverend Maxwell was ordained in 1914. He was led to serve the Lord among the Indians of Brazil 1916-1941. Although ill health prevented his return to them, his heart was there as he served in home missions in the United States. There can be little doubt that he was an inspiration to a new generation of missionaries as he visited many small churches in Wilmington Presbytery. Several persons who attended Hebron can recall his stirring descriptions of the challenges and the rewards of Christian work among the Brazilian Indians.

The late teen years brought World War I and the buying of Thrift stamps for 25¢ and War stamps for $5. Homes were broken, people went away to work in factories. In 1918 the flu epidemic was felt throughout the land. The country was in turmoil until Nov. 11, 1918--Armistice Day.

Times were changing--autos became more plentiful and more practical. Solid rubber tires and hard roads were implementing more prolific movement of the people across our nation. Radios spread the news faster than ever.

1920-1924 Rev. George Rouss Faw of Tennessee came to serve Hebron with Smith's and Seven Springs Churches. He found his bride, Retha Deans, here in Mt. Olive. He went on to minister in Kentucky and then Florida.

In 1924, Pleasant View Church was organized. Hebron had a part in starting their church and up until their organization the people of that area were members of Hebron. Our elder, Jno. W. Hammersley, was invited to sit on their commission for organization. Some of our members were there when their church building was dedicated in 1926.

Hebron's peak membership was in 1924 when the church reported 64 members and a Sunday School of 82. Sunday School was a joy. Proper dress and wearing your Sunday best had become a custom. Easter egg hunts were annual events. A Sunday School picnic was a great moment of the year with Nannie and Lonnie Smith bringing so much food they transported it in a trunk. Children were challenged with memorizing Bible verses and the catechisms. Perfect attendance was rewarded with a New Testmant for one's very own. Hazel Smith Rivenbark can recall when her mother, Celia Catherine Smith (or Aunt Cattie as most people called her) taught the boys class. Sallie Eliza Smith taught the girls. Malcolm Grady was Sunday School superintendent. The pride and the devotion given by Sunday School teachers of yesteryear is immeasurable. How many crowns they have earned in heaven we'll have to wait to find out but probably every living adult can honestly recall some great lesson as having been learned in Sunday School. The great sacrifice of time devoted and the loyal attendance by these devoted servants of the church and their excellent leadership have made us what we are today.

By 1926 the old road in front of Hebron was no longer a main highway through the country. It had seen the horseback rider, the ox-drawn cart, the mule and cart and many horse and buggies; now the automobile was relegating all those to the rear. A new paved road (the one we now call #11) had changed the flow of traffic and made it possible for trips that used to take all day to be accomplished in a few hours.

By the time of the Great Depression, tobacco was the chief cash crop for Albertson Township's farmers. The CCC and WPA provided employment for many farmers who needed some cash to clothe their families. Many persons interviewed stressed that their parents were still self-sufficient enough that none of them went hungry. Even though purse strings were tightened, faith and service to the Lord flowed without limit. While Rev. William Bonner Knox (1929-1931) was pastor of the Pink Hill group of churches (including Hebron), nine of Hebron's ladies organized an auxiliary. In 1930 they were led to raise enough money to give $20 to local causes and $8 to benevolence. Their leaders were Mrs. Sallie Westbrook and Mrs. Mamie Heath.

In 1933, Frank Leroy Goodman of Virginia, ordained an evangelist in 1928, was kept busy pastoring Hebron, Grove, Hallsville, and Stanford Church in Mt. Olive. 1934-1936, Lawrence Weldon Kessler of West Virginia returned to the Pink Hill group of churches. He is well remembered by lots of people especially for performing the marriage ceremony of Hess and Lena Smith Davis. In later years, he was stated clerk of Albemarle Presbytery.

When Pearl Harbor changed our land, Rev. Johnny Ray Dickens (1939-1943) was serving our church. There were suddenly lots of employment and pocket cash. Workers were needed at the ship building plant at Wilmington and for the expansion of Camp Davis and Camp LeJeune. Hebron had its own Roll of Honor and helped support the service social center at Jacksonville, North Carolina. Many served in the war effort and kept up the morale of the men who went away to fight for our country. Our people faced the rationing of sugar, coffee, gasoline, meats, fat, butter, cheese, and finally shoes.

In 1944, Reverend Norman Player Farrior of Rose Hill, who had been a missionary to Mexico in 1921 came and served Pink Hill, Smith's, Hebron, Pleasant View and Harper Southerland churches. He was there as counselor and friend as our young men returned from the war. His sincere, sympathetic personality appealed to both young and old, who sought to visit him after his retirement in 1961, not just because he had been a devoted pastor, but because they enjoyed being with him.

In 1953, Mr. L. B. Jenkins, prominent tobacconist of Kinston, donated $500 to Hebron. This was used for needed repairs and improvements to the building and the grounds. Prentice W. Smith, Malcolm Grady, and Willard G. Smith were elected trustees who might legally hold church property. In 1955, Hebron's trustees accepted a check for $7,318 which was made possible by the last will and testament of Nancy J. Smith. She and her husband, Lonnie Smith, were long-time members and staunch supporters of Hebron Presbyterian Church in their lifetimes. As directed in the will, this money was put into trust and is still being used for necessary maintenance and expense of the church which includes the pastor's salary.

The 1950's saw the number of church attendance decreasing and the folk of the congregation a bit older. Competition from outside sources such as TV removed interest and loyalty. Many young people transferred membership to their places of work and abode. By the 1960's Hebron was not lacking in interest but short of possibilities.

This seems to be an appropriate time to pay tribute to the person who comes to mind to our older generation when Hebron is mentioned--the man whose presence at Hebron denoted stability and continuity for it. Malcolm Grady began his church activity (to quote him) "while he was still in knee-pants." His desire to be a minister of the gospel, probably for monetary reasons, was not to be. Hebron Presbyterian Church became his avocation drawing on his many talents through the years--Sunday School superintendent, teacher of a boys' class, organist, pianist, and sought-after Bible teacher--teaching "straight from the Bible." It was his feeling that next to Christianity, family history is the most important. He had detailed mental and written records of many eastern North Carolina family histories that brought many visitors to his door. Folks say his Christian life was an example for others. What better legacy can a man leave behind him?

1966 marked eighty years of Hebron's existence. In April Dr. Harold S. Dudley preached at a big ceremony for the unveiling of two marble markers. The youngest church member, Dwight Nethercutt, unveiled the marker listing Hebron's charter members; and Emma Grady, the oldest member, unveiled the marker about the organization of the church. This celebration was continued in December when Rev. Murphy Smith of the First Church at New Bern spoke and the Stanford Choir came to sing. Rev. Troy D. Mullis read letters from 20 former and present members answering, "What Hebron Church and Sunday School have meant to me."

In 1976, Reverend Mullis who had been with the church since 1965, wrote a brief history of the church to celebrate its 90th birthday. The sermon for this celebration was preached by Rev. John Dail and Mrs. Graham Teachey was guest pianist. Rev. Mullis of Mecklenburg County, North Carolina, was interested not only in the salvation of souls but also in the opportunities daily life offered them. His volunteer services in both Christian and community organizations earned him the respect of many people. His friendship is much missed in this community.

Hebron began the 1980's with the services of Rev. Bruce Ford. In 1982 it was decided to suspend services at Hebron for lack of attendance. Its ten members could see that to continue was impractical. They did however want to see the 100th year of this church noted by others--therefore this celebration. Hebron Church stands as a memorial to its founders and to the glory of God. Even though dormant, its cemetery is kept thoroughly clean and the building is kept in good repair by Trustee Prentice W. Smith.

Hebron has made a big contribution to the work of Christ and a Christian sentiment in the community and touched the lives of many people for good. Hebron's sons and daughters have gone forth to all parts of the country to take their places in the upbuilding of our national life with the high ideals and ambition to succeed instilled in them by their Hebron ancestors with the same foundation that their fathers built upon. The main thing here now that wasn't here 100 years ago is us. We have a heritage and responsibility to do something good and great with all we have inherited.

DESCENDANTS OF CHARTER MEMBERS

One of the important tasks for celebration of Hebron's Centennial was to contact members and friends and descendants of its members. Since there is no complete list of all the persons who have been members, it was decided to concentrate on charter members. Much time and effort were put into trying to find the offspring of these families who were prominent in Hebron's development. We are sorry that lack of time and other limitations made it impossible for us to locate and contact everyone who should have been included. We did feel a presentation in a connected and chronological order of the data gathered would make an interesting contribution to Hebron's celebration.

The size and character of this booklet are such that it has been impossible to use all the facts gathered. There has been a large opportunity for errors. The sources themselves vary--tradition, memory, first-hand knowledge, family Bibles, legal papers, church minutes, old books --often epitaphs with none-too-clear script.

There has been no attempt to go into extensive ancestry. We do try to show the parentage, the siblings of the charter members, and then their descendants. Each charter member and descendant about whom we have further data is given a number. Names underlined are those of charter members. Where marriages of two families within the congregation have occasioned duplication of data, the information may be found in the male line.
